War Bride, and Aviator Husband Back From Overseas, Reunite Here

MRS. R. H. MATHEWS

(By John B. Chapple.)

Three weeks after the United States declared a state of war existing with Germany, R. H. Mathews was a private in the medical corps, ready to do his bit in the big struggle, and Mrs. Mathews, well, she was Miss Alvia Batholemeu at that time.

The two young people knew each other at Green Bay, and on Sept. 17, 1917, were married at Chicago, where Mr. Mathews was stationed. He was at that time a member of base hospital unit No. 13. Soon he was given a chance to transfer to aviation, and because the chance for active service seemed more immediate, bid his wife goodbye and left for Austin, Texas, where he began his training.

Mrs. Mathews secured a position as clerk of the local high school, and came here to work while her husband was away.

Mathews soon won his commission in the air service and was transferred to Ellington Field, where he was made an instructor. Later he went abroad as a member of the 11th aero squadron first day bombardment group. He became an expert in the use of the de Havilland bombing machine, and was preparing to take his place up in the front when the armistice was signed.

Mathews Sees Janesville Boy. "I saw George Sherman, a Janesville boy at Clermont, Tenn.," France, where he was in training after being wounded by shrapnel," Lieut. Mathews said. "I think he is coming back in March."

Lieut. Mathews flew into Germany after the signing of the armistice, and was soon on his way home. He was released early this month from the service at Garden City, Long Island, and came directly to Janesville.

"I'm glad he's back," Mrs. Mathews said today, but then—of course she was.

Couple Will Live in Chicago. Lieut. Mathews will leave for Green Bay this week to visit his parents, after which he will accept a position with a banking firm at Chicago. His wife will continue in her position here for a few months—probably until the end of the school year, when she will join him at Chicago.

STRIKERS, BOSSES TO MEET U. S. OFFER

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Feb. 18.—Representatives of the building trades employers' association of this city and their striking building trades workers each announced today they would send committees to meet Secretaries Baker and Wilson in Washington tomorrow afternoon in an attempt to settle the nation-wide strike, effective yesterday.

The action is in response to an invitation sent by Secretaries Baker and Wilson. William L. Hiltchman, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, said that he would attend the conference.

Samuel B. Donnelly, secretary of the Employers' association, declared that the association's representatives had not been decided upon, but that it was likely that its delegation would be led by its president, Ronald Taylor.

Both sides continued to make conflicting claims as to the extent of the strike. Labor leaders repeated that 100,000 men would be involved when the strike action became fully effective. While Mr. Donnelly claimed that not more than 5,000 men throughout the country had thus far responded to the strike call.

FINANCIAL TURNKEYS DO SPEEDY COUNTING

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Feb. 18.—The joint finance committee of the legislature is far in advance of the program of previous years. Tuesday afternoon the budgets of the normals and the university will be taken up and will probably be completed before the end of the week. During the past week the committee completed the hearings on the charitable and penal institution bills, but no formal action has as yet been taken by the committee.

are to be taken up this afternoon will be the Plattville mining school. The state board of public affairs has recommended that this institution be discontinued. It is doubtful if this recommendation will be followed by the finance committee.

Consideration of the normals will probably not be reached until Wednesday. The budget requests ask for $1,242,335 for the fiscal year 1919-20; and for $1,260,248 for the next year.

VARDAMAN STARTS LEAGUE BALL ROLLING

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Feb. 18.—Discussion of the league of nations developed unexpectedly in the senate today. Senator Vardaman of Mississippi, democrat, declared the league was unconstitutional and criticized President Wilson for asking congress to remain silent on the subject until he returned to Washington.

He said: "I have no sympathy with the suggestion made by the president that discussions by the senate should be postponed until he comes home. The president had thought more of America and her institutions and cared less for his personal ideas and efforts, he would have said to the American people 'discuss this measure, discuss, analyze, tear it to pieces and find out its every possible defect, for it is only by the attrition of ideas and friction of suggestions that the truth, the eternal truth, will be discovered.'"

PEACE TIME ARMY BILL MEETS DELAY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Feb. 18.—Administration leaders in the house failed today in their effort to have the rules committee report a special rule to meet parliamentary obstacles to legislation in the pending army appropriation bill for a temporary peace time army of 300,000 men.

Instead by a close vote the committee decided to give a rule for immediate consideration of a senate bill authorizing the resumption of voluntary enlistments.

A tentative decision was reached today by the house ways and means committee to authorize no increase in the unissued amount of liberty bonds but instead to authorize the treasury to issue notes, maturing in one to five years for any additional sums needed.

ACTION ON ALLEN'S CHARGES PUT OFF

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Feb. 18.—Congressional investigation of losses among Kansas and Missouri troops of the 35th division in the Argonne fighting which Gov. Allen of Kansas charged were unnecessarily heavy because of inefficiency and lack of artillery, will go over until the next session of congress.

Gov. Allen completed the presentation of his request for an inquiry to the house rules committee today.

"Of course it is a well known fact that the fighting continued up to 11 o'clock, November 11," said the governor. "It seemed that they were eager to get as close to Germany as possible, but every one knew when the 72 hours was given Germany for signing the armistice that the terms would be accepted. That then was a needless sacrifice of life."

"What is the purpose of these disclosures, we won the fight, didn't we?" asked Senator Kirby of Arkansas, democrat.

"The purpose is to find out why all this ordinance that we paid for did not arrive in time," he replied. "We won the battle, but we won't it with a terrible loss."

"I would like you to give us a report on the efficient work of your organization, the Y. M. C. A. a certain amount of criticism," the governor replied. "The Y. M. C. A. was the only organization that sold anything in France. We took over the army canteens and there were many charges of profiteering."

COLONIAL DAMES PLAN DELECTABLE MENU

Colonial Dames attired with fachu and can will urge patrons of the Martha Washington dinner to partake of the delectable viands prepared for them Saturday at the Baptist church. The meeting was held yesterday of the Kings Daughters who are arranging the affair, and strong committees named to make all arrangements. The general committee consists of Mrs. Chas. Eiler, Mrs. Wm. Conrad, and Mrs. Catchpole. One of their duties has been to plan the menu. The following has been announced as their choice: roast pork, creamed horse radish, mashed potatoes, baked apples, white and brown bread, scalloped corn, pumpkin and cherry pie and coffee.

Mrs. Edward Bailey has been preparing attractive posters which have been placed in the stores. Mrs. Breeze is in charge of the table decorations.

The women are planning to begin serving at 11:30 o'clock and will continue until all are served.

As Saturday is somewhat of a holiday, it is expected that a large crowd will attend the dinner. It will no doubt be largely patronized by business men also who wish to get a dinner down town. Everyone is invited to attend.

The money raised will be used for the piano fund of the Sunday school.

EXCELLENT PROGRESS MADE BY LUTHERANS

Excellent progress is being made by the Lutherans in Wisconsin in their campaign for $90,000 to be used in reconstruction work in France and the United States, according to the statement of J. Jensen of this city, state manager of the campaign.

Mr. Jensen said he is sure the Lutherans will go over the top before the campaign closes on February 28.

Rev. Muller of this city also spoke of the splendid work being accomplished and in discussing the drive in Rock county he said, "I am sure that the Lutherans of this county will over-subscribe their quota of $2,000."

Rev. Muller stated that according to the meager reports received the campaign is going ahead at a rapid pace and the Rock county quota will be easily over-subscribed before the campaign closes.

Rev. Fuchs stated that not only in Rock county but all through the state as far as he can ascertain the Lutherans are making an excellent showing and the $90,000 will easily be subscribed.

A canvass of the Lutherans of Rock county is being made and each Lutheran congregation in Janesville has a manager and a corps of workers.

BREEDERS REALIZE VALUE OF GOOD STOCK

The breeders of registered live stock in Rock County are realizing the value of good breeding and individuality in evidence by the amount of good seed stock being purchased. C. S. Malby, a breeder living south of the city, recently returned from a week's trip attending Poland-China sales where he purchased four choice sows to add to his herd.

He bought one in the J. E. Young sale sired by Young's "Big Timm" a son of the $2,500 Sever's "Big Timm" and bred to a son of the largest boar ever shown at the Illinois state fair.

In the J. D. McDonald sale, he purchased a yearling sired by "Mow's Chief," one of the most noted breeding boars in Illinois, and she is carry a litter by "Bob Quality 2nd," McDonald's $1,000 boar.

In the John F. O'Brien sale, Mr. Malby added another choice one to his collection. She is by the show boar, "Big Ben 2nd" and has been mated to "Bob's Equel" a son of "Big Bob Wondra." No boar of this breed has been more popular than this one.

Mr. Malby is trying to uphold the reputation of Poland-Chinas in this county and in all probability will hold a sale next winter.

Townsend Building to Start in Spring

Buildings which will add the Townsend Tractor company in doubling its present output capacity will be constructed as soon as the ground becomes workable this spring, according to a statement of Roy C. Townsend, president of the company, today.

The present main manufacturing building is already too small, and in addition is planned to take care of the orders for farm machines which have stacked up. An entire new testing department will be built. The cost of this new construction will be between $20,000 and $30,000.

The business of the Townsend company has overtaken the plant for some time. Last fall two new buildings were constructed, but operations ceased when inclement weather interfered with the building.

Simple way of heating a four-room cellarless cottage by IDEAL ARCOLA Radiator-Boiler and three AMERICAN Radiators.

Easy heating of a cellarless office building by our IDEAL ARCOLA Radiator-Boiler and two AMERICAN Radiators.

IDEAL ARCOLA hot water radiator-boiler

Puts IDEAL HOT WATER HEATING comfort in workman's cottage, cellarless small stores, country schools, cellarless churches, etc.

The IDEAL ARCOLA takes the place of a parlor stove. But a stove wastes much of its heat up the chimney, whereas the IDEAL ARCOLA conveys its heat by hot water circulation through pipe-connected AMERICAN Radiators stationed in the adjoining rooms. Every bit of the big volume of heat developed from each pound of fuel is therefore made useful in keeping ALL the rooms uniformly, healthfully warm. There is no coal-waste. The IDEAL ARCOLA does not rust out or wear out—will outlast the building—is a genuine, permanent investment!

Shipped complete ready for immediate operation

The beauty of the IDEAL ARCOLA method is that no cellar is needed. Everything is on one floor. The Arcola is placed in any room that has a chimney connection. No running to cellar. If there are two or more tenants in the building, each can have his own Arcola and make the temperature to suit his own needs—can make his own climate! If you do not wish at first to heat the entire building, buy a small size IDEAL ARCOLA and later on buy extra sections for the IDEAL ARCOLA and two or three more radiators to warm other rooms.

Cleanly heating—healthful heating—free from fire risk!

Unlike stoves, there are no coal-gas leaks into the living-rooms. The IDEAL ARCOLA delivers soft, radiant warmth—not the dry, burnt-out atmosphere of stove heating. There is no fire-risk to building—no danger to children—burns hard or soft coal or coke—fire lasts for hours! The Arcola changes a house into a cozy home! Buy it NOW, at today's attractive figure,

TOBACCO GROWERS MAY ADOPT RULES AT BIG MEETING TODAY

A suggestion that the Rock county tobacco growers pay a per capita sum of $100 with which to lease or purchase a warehouse where the tobacco of association growers could be stored and packed, was made by Frank Fisher, secretary of the Rock County Tobacco Growers association, which met this afternoon.

Two hundred growers were present at the meeting. Eugene Culver, president, presided.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU STRESSES SOLDIER AID

There are jobs—with easy money. There are jobs—that are soft snaps. There are jobs—for everyone that's fit. There are jobs—for sober-minded chaps. There are jobs—for everyone plenty. There are jobs—for the hardiest. But we try to get the jobs the hardest. For the boys who fought over the sea.

The above song sung to the tune of "Smiles" was one of the features of the labor conference at Madison, Saturday, from which F. J. Schmitt, superintendent of the local bureau, returned yesterday.

A special effort is being made in all offices to place discharged soldiers. Mr. Schmitt stated this morning. "The work has so far proved successful."

About 60 men formerly in the army and navy have found positions through the employment office. There are at the present time about 25 who need work. Mr. Schmitt is doing all in his power to place them in suitable occupations. Eight men have just been referred to Chicago, where there is a shortage of teachers. Instructional manual training and physics have gone there to resume their old occupations. Other men who were teachers before the war in smaller communities, have gone to Chicago in the hope of securing better places.

CHARLES SHULER A FIREMAN AGAIN

Charles "Treat Em Rough" Shuler, a former member of the Janesville Fire department, discarded the drab uniform of the marines this morning and again donned the blue of the fire ladders.

Mr. Shuler resigned his position with the local department the early part of last fall and enlisted in the marine corp. It was his second enlistment in the marines.

Before entering the fire department for the first time Mr. Shuler had a full enlistment in the marines. When discharged he returned to Janesville and shortly afterwards joined the fire department.

With the department he was driver of the truck at the East Side station. He was with the department for several years and his faithful work at all times made him a valuable member.

Chief Murphy announced this morning that Mr. Shuler had again entered the ranks of the fire fighters and that he would now be stationed at the West Side.

Chief Murphy announced this morning that Mr. Shuler had again entered the ranks of the fire fighters and that he would now be stationed at the West Side.

Stubborn Roof Fire Quickly Extinguished

Quick work on the part of the fire department probably saved the home of J. P. Wright on Division street, from heavy damage by fire. The department answered the alarm at 10 o'clock this morning, and when Chief Murphy arrived he ordered the two large trucks to the scene.

The quick work made to the scene by the trucks and the firemen prepared to fight a stubborn blaze. Chemicals were poured on the blaze and the fire was quickly extinguished. Chief Murphy estimated the loss at $15.

Salvation Army Girl Tangles Down Trench to Amuse Fighting Yanks

(By John B. Chapple.)

This is a war story—but it is a story that is different. Walter Dulin, a Janesville boy who has seen things that cost other men their lives, who has lived through the trench warfare of Verdun, and Cantigny, and Chateau, tells it. It happened at the St. Mihiel sector.

"No one can know what the life is up there in the front line without living it. I saw it. I saw the shells, and the fire, and the noise of the big guns, and the sharp spit of the machine gun bullets as they cut across the charred, devastated ground, in the trench. I saw it. I saw it. I saw it."

"No one can know what the life is up there in the front line without living it. I saw it. I saw the shells, and the fire, and the noise of the big guns, and the sharp spit of the machine gun bullets as they cut across the charred, devastated ground, in the trench. I saw it. I saw it. I saw it."

"Up there men would become brutes—but for one thing. That thing is the 'Salvation Army girl.' Nobody knows what they have done to her. They didn't simply feed us back there in the safety zone. They came with us into the trenches—right up where the Boche and Yanks were murdering one another. And they went over the top with us."

"Salvation Army Praised." "Shells, grenades, bullets, gas, filled the air up there. We were used to one another—the cruelty of it all nearly killed our manhood. And then, when we thought we could stand it no longer, a little Salvation Army girl, wearing a 'tin hat' would come down the trench with coffee and doughnuts. We worshipped those girls!"

"When we went over the top we didn't leave them behind. Before we had become settled in our new position, they would be with us, cheering us, brightening us up, feeding us with warm coffee and doughnuts. Those girls meant more to us than our lives. To most of them, the only joy was to see a man's death at the hands of our own comrades."

"One day the shelling was exceptionally fierce. My buddies—boys I have gone through other drives with—began falling. Shells ruined into the trench. We stood there stolidly, but every few minutes one of the boys would slip down, gone forever. We were growing fiercer and mad in our nervousness to move, to go ahead, even to death."

"Suddenly down the trench came a Salvation Army girl, only 17 or 18 years old, but brave—braver even than the men. One arm was a pull of steaming coffee, and over the other a pail of doughnuts. Her appearance in that hell of fire and smoke caused our enthusiasm to break forth, and we passed on forever."

"She delivered her food, and watched us devour it. She was doing her share, and she knew it, and was glad. Afterward, when she started back down the lead-street trench, she wanted to cheer us on—on to victory. 'Tangoes Through Hell of Fire.'"

"So she tipped her tin hat over one eye and sang to us. The boys who had tangoed down the trench, arms a-kimbo, 'Wouldn't you like to be at a grand ball, boys?' she called to us. 'I have been over here in the trench. I must have heard us in the enemy trench.'"

"Over in this country the Salvation Army is really appreciated. But the boys who have been over a street service with their eyes fixed the other way, for the one big thing they remember, besides the nightmare of gas and shells, is the Salvation Army girl."

Coach Crabtree's manual training basketball team defeated Zimmerman's proteges by the score of 19 to 14 in a game played at the high school Friday evening.

A feed and an initiation was held last night by the "Y" club at the Y. M. C. A. building. Supper was served at 6:15 after which the study class was directed by J. R. Jensen. Initiation of 20 new members followed. The formal initiation was a highly different than in past years and was a huge success.

SERGT. HAMMARLUND RELEASED FROM ARMY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

That is the expression used by Sergeant Oscar Hammarlund in describing his feelings when he received his discharge at Camp Grant. Sergeant Hammarlund, a former employee of the Gazette, arrived home this morning after spending the past four months at the Rockford cantonment.

Sergeant Hammarlund left this city with a draft contingent early last fall and it was his one desire to go to France with the Blackhawk division. He lost his chance, however, as he proved to be too efficient on paper work.

When the division left Sergeant Hammarlund was retained to assist in caring for the influx of new recruits. He quickly adapted himself to the office routine in the army and his adaptability in this line barred him from leaving Camp Grant.

Sergeant Hammarlund since the day the armistice was signed has worked night and day assisting in the discharge of his comrades but no mention was ever made of a discharge for him.

Last Friday morning much to his surprise he was ordered before the examining board and late yesterday afternoon he received an honorable discharge. He will resume work with the Gazette.

NOTICE

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

The following letter was received by A. H. Roepke, Evansville, from his son, Julius:

Captivity, France, Jan. 31, 1918. Well, how are all the folks? I am feeling darned better since we hit the place and see that there is more work to do for us, instead of sending us home after we get through with our work, which we thought was our last work in France. There sure is something wrong some place to make us fellows stop over here after the war is over and cut their timber for them as we call the French are laying around France taking furloughs, drinking wine and promenading. I think it would be a good idea for some of you fellows who have sons that came over here—we were glad to come—and by the way, will say that I never heard a kick in this company about work while the war was going on, would get together see our sergeant or write him and tell him just how the situation is. We fellows over here can't do anything; in fact this letter may be cut to the devil before you get it so it is up to the men on the other side to get us back. The place where we are now we have to put in a ten-mile railroad to reach the timber, and in all these things we are used to. French think would be a good idea to cut and save them the bother, when we ought to be home helping them; but here we are working for $1.00 per day, while they are some copping off big pay, while it seems the men in the states have forgotten we have already won the war and let us go working our heads off for the "cogs."

And the French people must think we are a bunch of fish. Just to show you how they appreciate our help here, the day we left our last camp at Vaux the prices on everything that we used to come to were cut in half. Now this is an absolute fact. We left men behind for guard duty and they got here today and told us. You could buy anything you used to pay twenty cents for for ten now, so you see why we are so anxious to stay over here and work for that kind of pay. Now some of these fellows here write home to how they like France and French people make me tired. They put it in some newspaper and maybe the people think we don't want to get home, why there is one thing sure, whenever a fellow from here writes anything like that he either has been in a gas attack and it affected his brain, or he has gone crazy over some girl over here, or maybe he was just born that way. You can send this letter to any paper you want. In fact I wish you would let the people in the United States know what we think about it. Now don't think I am an optimist and am writing this for my own special benefit, but all feel the same. You probably will see some of the letters from other boys in the papers.

"The French people back of the lines never enjoyed such prosperity before in their lives, as since we came over here and they started to rob us. I have been over here eight months and I haven't saved a cent. It cost me over 300 francs on my furlough. I went into one restaurant in Paris, ordered four eggs, fried potatoes and bread, with a bottle of beer (you can't drink their coffee). They charged me twenty-eight francs, or about five dollars. So you can plainly see again why the French want us to stay here, work for them, and give them all we can earn for what little enjoyment we can get out of life over here. The other big question in the mind of practically every soldier in the A. E. forces is, are the folks going to stand for this and make us stay here? Or maybe the men at home don't realize it. But there sure seems to be a nigger in the fence some place, or they would start us home."

"About 80 per cent of the fellows in our company are farmers, and you all know what it means to them if they don't get home by the first of April. They have practically lost all their summer's work, which in lots of cases means the turning point of some young man's lives. There is probably more than one man in our squad who owns a farm of their own but haven't got it all paid for. Now every year they keep him over here he is losing $600 to $700, which would soon set him up in life with a nice little house and a car. But what's the use? Here he is working for $1 per day and the war all over. You folks get busy over there now. Here is my own situation. I volunteered to join the army and have never regretted it, but when I enlisted I expected to work at the auto business. Now I have never lifted up the hood on a motor car since I was in France. I never kicked while the war was going on, but now that it is all over I wish I were back home where I could work at my trade instead of saying hello and driving four horses or maybe two. That will be a fine trade for me after I get home now, won't it?

"Now Dad, I could go on writing, or as some people with me their letter will say, raving for the rest of the night, but I think you can see from what I have written just what we all expect of you folks now. Send me this letter when you print it. Also send one to Fred. Let him give it to M. R. Stanley."

THOMAS E. CONDON.

The following letter was received from Thomas E. Condon, Company C, 1st Supply Train, by his mother, Mrs. James Condon.

Montabour, Ger., Jan. 17, 1919. The weather is fine and we don't have to wear an overcoat at all. We have had one fall of snow here and it looks like we will not get another. It will be sometime before we get home by the looks of things, but a person can never tell that way.

JAMES E. KING.

James E. King, Base hospital No. 57, has written to his mother, Mrs. Edgar King, 455 North River street. This is the first time she has had a word from him since last June. Part of his letter follows:

"I don't want you to get the idea because I am in the hospital that all is not well with me. I could feel a lot better but it is nothing serious. Just the same old trouble I always had at home. I wish I could get home then I would feel better but here I am laying around and worrying myself to death wondering about you. If I could only get a letter once in a while perhaps it would help but here it is nine months since I have received a word."

NOTICES FURNISHED BY THE THEATRES.

MYERS THEATRE.

Not in years has so much genuine heart interest centered in an American book or play as is now directed toward "Pollyanna," which comes to Myers Theatre on Sunday evening, Feb. 23, with an excellent cast assembled by Klav & Erlanger and George C. Tyler. The "Pollyanna" stories, which have enormous circulation in many lands, were written by Eleanor H. Porter of Boston. "Pollyanna" was dramatized by Catherine Chisholm Cushing, the author of "A Widow by Proxy," "The Real Thing," "Kitty Mackay" and "Billie Burke's 'Jerry.'" The comedy is in every sense one of fascinating interest and its urgent appeal is to those who have been through the mill of experience. It does not deal with sex problems, nor morbid themes, and is for the many who seek the theater for real diversion, for harmless merriment and appealing sentiment. And it is full of surprises. The play goes with the spirit of glad philosophy. Pollyanna, a young girl, the orphaned daughter of a western missionary, goes to live with a crusty maiden aunt in the city. The aunt did not desire her but through her persistence in playing what she calls "the glad game," Pollyanna not only won the heart of her aunt, but transformed all the grouches of the town. "The glad game" is simple. The player simply tries to be glad over everything, it matters not what happens. So keen is the interest in many cities where "Pollyanna" has played, that local ministers have preached the philosophy of Pollyanna from their pulpits. Young people all over America have organized what are called "Glad Clubs" to attend the play and drink in the beautiful philosophy of the buoyant girl whose gladness colored an entire community into one of happiness.

Claire Mersereau leads the cast, and those prominent in their support are Gordon Johnston, George Lindsay, John Webster, Fanchon Campbell, Katherine Rober, Helen Weatherby, Master Thomas Deely and others.

Salvi is a wonderful young genius. Hear him.

A WOMAN'S BUSINESS

DO TROUBLES EVER COME SINGLE?

"But you aren't really worried over your husband's change of fortune, are you?" asked Roy Nicol when the car was well under way and he became conscious of Janet's pleasurable presence. "I'm not," she answered promptly. "It's a beastly shame to have David Temple put out of office. It's a disgrace to the politics. But I'm not worried over my own account. I loved my work. I loved the opportunities it gave me to help a little tiny bit in the work of the world. Not to mention the wonderful money. Roy, you only know where I'll ever get another job at fifty a week. They don't grow on trees."

"Well, you'll have to do like other wives and let your husband support you, for a while anyhow, till you can look around."

"Oh, of course," answered Janet impatiently. "But that puts us right back financially to where we were before we were married. We only hurried up our marriage because my position in Mr. Temple's office gave me such a splendid chance to control the money and keep it out of my home. And I do so want to have my chance at play writing and story writing. I've urged him to quit his advertising grime and go into the literary world. With me earning a plump salary—that was his opportunity! So many people go through life without ever having their opportunity. Roy, I want to turn the thing in next week," said Janet, as Roy brought the car to a sweeping stop before the door.

"He'll never make more than a million dollars," said Roy, as he turned the car around. "I know fellows who've tried it. Always glad to run to cover after they've free-lanced for a while."

Then they went into the house. And the first thing Walt Stedman said to his wife after he'd kissed her a boisterous welcome was: "Well, girl, I've chucked my job. I'm going free-lancing. Congratulate me—both of you!"

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 18 and am engaged to a young man of 19. I now have another friend. He seems much dearer to me than the first man. They would both make me a happy home. I really love the second. Would it be all right to give up the first although he always treated me so grandly? If so, how shall I do it?

A LOVER'S DELIGHT. I would like to tell you about an engagement with a man you do not love. Do not, however, become engaged to the other man. You are too young to know real love and should wait a few years until you are more sure of your tastes. A girl should not marry a man with whom she knows she can be happy; she should marry a man whom she feels she cannot live without.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman with three children. My husband is very jealous of me. What can I do to prove that I am true to him? He is jealous of me if I go to church or anywhere without him, and he will not go with me. I would like to go to church without him or stay at home with him. And what can I do to make him care for me as he once did?

YOUR HUSBAND CARES FOR YOU OR HE WOULD NOT BE JEALOUS. You fear his opinion too much. Go to church and do whatever you consider right for you. When he criticizes the matter, tell him that you will not cure him of his jealousy. It may be that when he learns you are firm about going to church, he will accompany you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: It was necessary for me to leave school to go to work in order to help my parents. I am now in a very good position. I am a good book at night school. If good books will help, what books would you recommend? M. D. D. Books will help you to improve your education to a very great extent. Consult a librarian or the principal at your school. They will consider personality and exceptional intelligence had lured him. For she was a girl and a working girl. And Nicol was an unattached bachelor, handsome and handsomely financed. Innumerable experiences had taught him to be wary of the female of the species. He shied at marriage. Selfish enough to cling to his pleasant freedom, he was too decent-minded to offer a girl of Janet's type the remotest hint of anything less than marriage. So he kept his distance, clasping hands with her as it were across the chasm of formality between employer and employee—the existence of which chasm is so largely in the female's control.

Now, however, Janet Thayer was Janet Stedman, safely married, and (as Roy thought) she had retained all her pretty feminine qualities while taking on the poise and confidence given by her business life. Perhaps it was greatly to Roy Nicol's credit that he was usually more than ready to go out of his way to have Janet Stedman's company. He knew prettier girls. Even sprightlier girls. And widows. And many married women, young and—not so young. All were willing to entertain him with less reserve than Janet. Yet they rang his telephone in vain while he was driving Janet from the country inn to her city home, where her devoted husband awaited.

When they reached the apartment, lights were burning brightly in Walt's study.

"He's hard at work on his story, poor lad. He had a letter from Minneapolis. He can turn the thing in next week," said Janet, as Roy brought the car to a sweeping stop before the door.

"He'll never make more than a million dollars," said Roy, as he turned the car around. "I know fellows who've tried it. Always glad to run to cover after they've free-lanced for a while."

Then they went into the house. And the first thing Walt Stedman said to his wife after he'd kissed her a boisterous welcome was: "Well, girl, I've chucked my job. I'm going free-lancing. Congratulate me—both of you!"

Morning Robe Of New York Design

BY ELOISE.

It would be an easy life for Mr. Tired Business Man if all of fashion's fads and fancies were voted out with prohibition, but what a sad one for the modistes and fashion writers. All of which is my way of introducing the very newest and most fashionable fad of the hour—the use of the batik process to produce wonderful designs and color effect in chiffons and other sheer materials.

A shop which tries to keep just about an hour ahead of the times has a window display of this batik work which is beautiful to behold. There are lovely blouses and tunics of marvelous shades of blues, reds, purples and greens with the most intricate designs in ecruist or futuristic effect. There are filmy scarves of the same stuffs and alluring negligees.

Pictured is one of the most fascinating of the morning robes. It is done in delicate shades of blue mauve and yellow. It is built along rather classical lines with long under-drapes and a shorter front and back over panel.

Thomas. You don't need to ask anybody and if I had more time I'd tell you, but I've got a date with the boys down at the engine-house and—anyway, I won't be home till late, so you'll be in dreamland when I get back or I'll tan you, d-yuh hear?" blustered Pa, more to drown Ma Asklit's snickers than anything.

A Guide to GOOD MANNERS

A woman who plans a large reception must follow certain rules rigidly. She must be present in the drawing room a few moments before the hour set in her invitations. She takes her place at the left or right just inside the door, with her husband, the special honor guest or her daughters beside her.

From the beginning to the end of the afternoon her post is by the door, and she should not desert it for food or rest. As guests enter the hostess cordially offers her right hand and a pleasant greeting. She should then introduce them to the persons receiving with her.

In the early part of the afternoon she may have time to chat a bit with the guests as they appear, but later when they come in greater numbers she must confine herself to a handshake, a brief greeting and a few words of farewell.

The guest who receives with a hostess need not attend to her duty as the hostess. She need not stay the entire afternoon by the door.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D. LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

ISOLATION IS VEXATION

Cardio-vascular degeneration (arterial hardening, heart muscle failure, Bright's disease and "nephrosis") now destroy more lives than any other disease affecting adults. The prevention of cardio-vascular disease is strictly a matter of personal hygiene, personal health and education.

But respiratory infection is by all odds the greatest cause of disability and of sickness and expense and suffering and inefficiency which sickness entails, not only in adult life but in infancy, childhood, youth and advanced age. The prevention of respiratory infection is a matter not alone of personal hygiene, but also of common courtesy and of public health administration.

A man or woman may live as he or she sees fit, may develop cardio-vascular disease and succumb prematurely, and it is strictly his or her own affair. But when anybody has an alleged "cold," the "grippe," "the flu," pneumonia, diphtheria, acute bronchitis, acute sore throat or tonsillitis, or any of the pulmonary tuberculosis, scarlet fever, whooping cough, or poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis), it is not merely a personal affair. It is an affair that seriously concerns the public welfare. A respiratory infection allowed to exist without isolation is certainly a crime against the public welfare.

Yet where the health board, where is the health officer with the courage to insist upon the isolation of every individual known to have a respiratory infection? There is no such health officer and no such health officer, because, they say, the dear public is not yet intelligent enough to understand the reason for isolation of all these respiratory infections—or, in other words, Mrs. Grundy does not approve of any alterations of the old order. Isolation is indeed vexation to a selfish person or an ignorant person. But why should we, the public, subject ourselves to needless risks, just because the selfish and the ignorant object to keeping their diseases to themselves?

Take pneumonia. In New York state a few years ago the disease was a made reportable like diphtheria. Then, owing perhaps to Mrs. Grundy's frown, the state health authorities deleted pneumonia from the list of reportable infections for a spell. Then they seemed to get back a little more courage and they replaced pneumonia on the list again.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
One Too or More
A girl aged twenty-three has what is called inflammatory rheumatism. The doctor first thought her tonsils were the cause. She had them removed without relief to the joints. Would you advise her to have her tonsils removed? Would it be harmful for such a case?

ANSWER.—No. Give the doctor a chance. Don't be a one-shot rheumatic. There are various other tests yet; for instance, she hasn't had her teeth X-rayed, nor her nasal accessory sinuses explored for the fact that seriously concerns his business. Stick to him. Open air is certainly advisable for all other infections; do any harm.

135 at Fifty-Six
Kindly tell me through your columns how many of the health board's blood pressure should be at the age of 55 years.

(J. J. M.)
ANSWER.—A healthy man of that age normally has a blood pressure of from 135 to 145 millimeters mercury. Variations of ten to twenty millimeters occur from temporary changes of diet, emotional conditions, tobacco, alcohol, physical activity, etc.

RECIPES FOR ADAY.

Noodle Soup.—One egg, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup flour, beef broth; beat egg well, add salt and pour into the well stirred flour; mix to a stiff dough and roll out as thin as possible. Dust very slightly with flour and roll up like a jelly roll, wrap in a cloth and let stand two hours; then cut slices from the end of the roll and drop into the boiling broth, cover well and boil 20 minutes, stirring once or twice to make sure they are not sticking to the bottom of the pan. Eggs very greatly in size, a larger egg requiring a little more flour, a smaller one a little less.

Mucedoine Salad.—Left over peas, potatoes, asparagus, beans, carrots, cauliflower, boiled salad dressing, onion if desired. For one who plans meals in advance this is a very economical salad, as portions of vegetable and meat are used. It may be taken to use in this way, care being taken to keep them in nice condition; combine the vegetables, add the dressing of the salad, dressing.

TRIED RECIPES.

Cranberry Tarts.—Line muffin pans with plain pastry, trim edges neatly. Fill with cranberry sauce. Lay strings of pastry crosswise over the tops. Bake in a quick oven. Sprinkle powdered sugar over them.

Corn Fritters.—To one cup of corn add salt, pepper, half a cup flour, one tablespoon of butter melted and two well beaten eggs. Fry on a griddle with the spoonful and serve very hot.

Fried Omelette.—Using left-over oatmeal from breakfast. Make into little cakes. Roll in bread-crumbs and fry until brown on both sides. Serve with or without syrup.

Baked Apples.—Cut three or four raisins in the hole of each apple, then sugar, and then a small lump of butter, and bake in the usual way. The raisins give the apples a pleasant flavor and are good for the children.

They Put Him in the Copper.

In the Tudor days the poisoner was liable to be condemned to death by boiling; while under another statute, the man convicted of theft "shall have his head shaved, melted pitch poured upon it, and the feathers from a pillow shaken over it, that he may be known." After all there are advantages in living in the twentieth century!

SIDE TALKS

BY—

RUTH CAMERON.

A friend of mine has a very fascinating mannerism. When she raises her eyebrows her left eyebrow crinkles and goes to a farther than the right, thus giving her a delightfully nuttish expression.

I love to say things that I think will cause this expression to appear. I consider it one of the foremost of a friend's chief facial charms, and I find so to her one day, hoping she might give me light on how it was done.

"I don't know what you mean," she said. At first I thought it was a pretense, but her expression of genuine puzzlement soon convinced me otherwise. She actually never knew that she had that expression! And yet she was a woman well over thirty! Just think no one who has met her in the last twenty-five years but has noticed this little trick of expression, and she, who has lived with herself, is ignorant of it!

One Does Not Raise One's Eyebrows at Oneself.

And yet, when one stops to think of it, one can understand. One does not raise one's eyebrows when one is looking in the glass at oneself. It is an interesting thought when you stop to consider it how little we do know of how we really look. The face we turn to the glass is a face from which individuality and ordinary expression has been completely ironed out. We may smile self-consciously at ourselves, but that is not the mile we really use when we are

SHE NEVER KNEW SHE DID IT. smiling from our hearts instead of just with our facial muscles. Incidentally, I have a friend who insists that the average glass does not give back anything like an exact reflection.

A Tip to Milliners.
Sometimes she looks over my shoulder when I am doing my hair before a mirror and looks from me to the image in the glass. She thinks I look just like you; well, it doesn't. The kindly inference in her case is that the glass does not flatter. And that I think is true of the average woman. There are glasses, however, that go to the opposite extreme. I have a hat that I bought from a milliner, part of whose stock in trade was such a glass. I think that I should, if necessary, spend half my capital for such a mirror if I became a milliner!

Dimples and Gold Crowns.
To turn the main road. When we were discussing the subject of one's lack of acquaintance with one's own appearance, another woman told me of this experience. One of those friends who feel it is their duty to be frank, repeated to her, "criticize to the effect that she was always drawing down the corner of her mouth in such a way as to make her dimple show." "It's a dimple," said the kind friend, "but we would like it much better if you weren't always trying to show it." And the truth was, that the woman had a gold crown in her mouth which she much disliked and really drew down her mouth, with the idea of hiding it. You can make your own moral.

"Is it now?" Tommy was getting impatient.
"Yes, I think—"
"You know it come to an end?" laughed Tommy.

"Ha. You think you're funny, don't you, Thomas? Well, suppose you take a little scotch upstairs and—"
"Aw, have a heart, Pa. I was only joking!"

Say, Pa, were studying electricity. What's a watt?"

"What?"

"What?" emphasized Tommy.

"What's a watt?"

"What's a watt? Now, listen here, if you cut up any capers with me you'll get a good whaling and what's more—"

The Daily Novelette

AT IT AGAIN.
Tommy had been quietly studying his lessons for fifteen minutes. Perhaps Tommy was sick? Maybe he should send for a doctor?

"Pa!"

With a sigh, Pa looked up from his paper. Oh, no; Tommy wasn't too sick to ask those doggone questions—no such good luck!

"Pa!" Are you asleep?

"No, wish I was. What do you want?"

"Pa, is the earth round?"

"I think it is, although I never went around it to see."

"But it is it, isn't it?"

"It used to be," answered Pa, guardedly.

The dog rained on him and whined, crouched at his feet whining like a child. Sabron bent and fondled him. The sailor from the table called the dog imperatively, but Pitchoune would have died at his master's feet rather than return. If his throat could have uttered words he would have spoken, but his eyes spoke. They looked as though they were tearful.
"Pitchoune, mon vieux! No, it can't be Pitchoune. But it is Pitchoune!" And Sabron took him up in his arms. The dog tried to lick his face.
"Voyons," said the officer to the marine, who came rolling over to them, "where did you get this dog?"
The young man's voice was imperative and he fixed stern eyes on the sailor, who pulled his forelock and explained.
"He was following me," said Sabron, not without a slight catch in his voice. The body of Pitchoune quivered under his arm. "He is my dog. I think his manner proves it. If you have grown fond of him I am sorry for you, but I think you will have to give him up."
Sabron put his hand in his pocket and turned a little away to be free of the native crowd that, chattering and grinning, amused and curious and eager to participate in any distribution of coin, was gathering around him. He found two gold pieces which he put into the hand of the sailor.
"Thank you for taking care of him. I am at the Royal Hotel," he nodded, and with Pitchoune under his arm pushed his way through the crowd and out of the bazaar.

He could not interview the dog himself, although he listened, amused, to Pitchoune's own manner of speech. He spent the latter part of the evening composing a letter to the minister of war, and although it was short, it must have possessed certain evident and telling qualities, for before he left Algiers proper for the desert, Sabron received a telegram much to the point:
You may keep your dog. I congratulate you on such a faithful companion.

CHAPTER XI.
A Sacred Trust.
His eyes had grown accustomed to the glare of the beautiful sands, but his sense of beauty was never satisfied with looking at the desert picture and drinking in the glory and the loveliness of the melancholy waste. Standing in the door of his tent in fatigue uniform, he said to Pitchoune:
"I could be perfectly happy here if I were not alone."
Pitchoune barked. He had not grown accustomed to the desert. He hated it. It slipped away from under his little feet; he could not run on it with any comfort. He spent his days idly in his master's tent or royally perched on a camel, crouching close to Sabron's man servant when they went on caravan explorations.
"Yes," said Sabron, "if I were not alone. I don't mean you, mon vieux. You are a great deal, but you really don't count, you know."
Before his eyes the sands were as pink as countless rose leaves. To Sabron they were as fragrant as flowers. The peculiar incense-like odor that hovers above the desert when the sun declines was to him the most delicious thing he had ever inhaled. All the west was as red as fire. The day had been hot and there came up the cool breeze that would give them a delicious night. Overhead, one by one, he watched the blossoming out of the great stars; each one hung above his lonely tent like a bridal flower in a veil of blue. On all sides, like white petals on the desert face, were the tents of his men and his officers, and from the encampment came the hum of military life, yet the silence to him was profound. He had only to order his stallion saddled and to ride away for a little distance in order to be alone with the absolute stillness.

This he often did and took his thoughts with him and came back to his tent more conscious of his solitude every night of his life.
There had been much looting of caravans in the region by brigands, and his business was that of sentinel for the commerce of the plains. Thieving and rapacious tribes were under his eye and his care. Tonight, as he stood looking toward the west into the glow, shading his eyes with his hand, he saw coming toward them what he knew to be a caravan from Algiers. His ordonnance was a native soldier, one of the desert tribes, black as ink, and scarcely more childlike than Brunet and presumably as devoted.
"Mustapha," Sabron ordered, "fetch me out a lounge chair." He spoke in French and pointed, for the man understood imperfectly and Sabron did not yet speak Arabic.
He threw himself down, lighted a fresh cigarette, dragged Pitchoune by the nape of his neck up to his lap, and the two sat watching the caravan slowly grow into individuals of camels and riders and finally mass itself in shadow within some four or five hundred yards of the encampment.
The sentinels and the soldiers began to gather and Sabron saw a single footman making his way toward the camp.
"Go," he said to Mustapha, "and see what message the fellow brings to the regiment."
Mustapha went, and after a little returned, followed by the man himself, a black-bearded, half-naked Bedouin, swathed in dust-colored burnoose and carrying a bag.
He bowed to Captain de Sabron and extended the leather bag. On the outside

Doctor Prescribed Vinol
For This Poor Mother Who Could Not Find Relief
Glasgow, Ky. "I am a farmer's wife and was suffering from a nervous breakdown—loss of flesh and poor appetite so I could hardly drag around and do the work for my family. My doctor prescribed Vinol. It not only made me well and strong but I have gained in weight." Mrs. S. M. Gray. The reason Vinol proved such a wonderful strength creator in Mrs. Gray's case is because of the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates combined in a pure, native tonic wine, which makes Vinol the most successful tonic. Smith Drug Co. Vinol is sold in Brodhead by V. J. Smith and druggists everywhere.

side of the leather there was a ticket pasted, which read:
"The Post for the — Squadron of Cavalry."
Sabron added mentally:
"—wherever it may happen to be!"
He ordered batish given to the man and sent him off. Then he opened the French mail. He was not more than three hundred miles from Algiers. It had taken him a long time to work down to Dirbal, however, and they had had some hardships. He felt a million miles away. The look of the primitive mail bag and the knowledge of how far it had traveled to find the people to whom these letters were addressed made his hands reverent as he unfolded the sealed labels. He looked the letters through, returned the bag to Mustapha and sent him off to distribute the post.
Then, for the light was bad, brilliant though the night might be, he went into his tent with his own mail. On his dressing table was a small illumination consisting of a fat candle set in a glass cage. The mosquitoes

DINNER STORIES
A nervous old beau entered a costumer's and said:
"I want a little help in the way of a suggestion. I am going to the French students' masquerade ball tonight, and I want a distinctly original costume—something I can be quite sure no one else will wear. What can you suggest?"
The costumer looked him over attentively, bestowing special notice on his gleaming bald and shining head.
"Well, I'll tell you," he said, thoughtfully, "why don't you sugar your head and go as a pill?"
Once upon a time there was in charge of a certain Episcopal parish down on Long Island a youngish minister, who made a decided hit with a middle aged spinster of large means. Her family, with whom the preacher was less popular, used to torment her good naturedly about the "angel man," as they called the divine. One day the spinster brought the minister home for Sunday dinner without previously clearing his intention to do so. Her brothers and sister, who had not gone to service, were in the big living room when she breezed in, having left the preacher in the hall to remove his overcoat. "Well, how was and flies were thick around it. Pitchoune followed him and lay down on a rush mat, by the side of Sabron's military bed, while the soldier read his letter.

Monsieur—
I regret more than ever that I cannot write you in French perfectly. But even in my own I could not find any word to express how badly I feel over something which has happened.
I took the best of care of Pitchoune. I thought I did, but I could not make him happy. He mourned terribly. He refused to eat, and one day I was so careless as to open the door for him and we have never seen him since. As far as I know, he has not been found. Your man, Brunet, comes sometimes to see my maid, and he thinks he has been hurt and died in the woods.
Sabron glanced over to the mat where Pitchoune, stretched on his side, his forepaws wide, was breathing tranquilly in the heat.
We have heard rumors of a little dog who was seen running along the highway, miles from Tarascon, but of course that could not have been Pitchoune.
Sabron nodded. "It was, however, mon brave," he said to the terrier.
Not but what I think his little heart was brave and valiant enough to have followed you, but no dog could go so far without a better scent.
Sabron said: "It is one of the regrets of my life that you cannot tell us about it. How did you get the scent? How did you follow me?" Pitchoune did not stir, and Sabron's eyes returned to the page.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy
You can save about 82, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.
If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple, home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.
Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and add the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than any ready-made remedy. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.
This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives the home with syrup, using either the pinex, stops the irritable throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.
A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough, and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.
Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.
To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Worth, Tex.

the angel man today?" they chorused. "Did he preach one of his soul inspiring sermons and was he as handsome as ever?" Sister made no move to halt the flow of kidding, but turning toward the dog, said: "Here he is; judge for yourselves as to his looks as for his sermon, perhaps you'd all been better off for hearing it." That ended the kidding for all time.
Tales of the Friendly Forest
Now I suppose you have been worried to death about the little Fresh Water Crab who got caught in the net, as I mentioned in the story before this. And you may be sure he was worried, too, for he didn't know how soon the Miller's Bay might come along and find him. So he tugged and pulled, but his big claws wouldn't get go. Wasn't that funny? I guess the little crab was so excited he didn't know how to open it.
Well, pretty soon Billy Bunny hopped back from the Old Mill Pond to find out what had become of the little crab. And as soon as he saw him fast in the net, he set out for the Farm Yard to get Henny Jenny to lend him her scissors.

"I'll come with you," said the kind-hearted little hen, and she put her comb and ran down to the Babbling Brook. And then she opened her little work bag and took out her scissors and in less time than I can take to tell you, she cut the fish net all around the little crab's claws and then he was free. But, oh, dear me. There was a big hole in the net.
"Now I'll take my needle and thread and sew it together," said the little hen, but Billy Bunny said, "No, let it alone. The little fishes now can swim right through it, and the Miller's Bay won't be able to take them home to fry for breakfast."
And then the little Fresh Water Crab swam down to the Old Mill Pond, where there wasn't any net to catch him, and told Uncle Bunifros all about his narrow escape.
And after that the little rabbit hopped down to the postoffice in Rabbitsville to see if there was a letter for him. And when he got there he found his little Uncle Lucky. And he found his little friend, the old gentleman rabbit, you know.
But there wasn't any letter for Billy Bunny, but there was one for Uncle Lucky, and it was from Uncle Sam's High Gardiner. And the envelope was big and fat and full of seeds. There were carrot seeds and lettuce seeds, and watermelon seeds, and very kind of a seed you could think of.
"Hop into the Luckymobile," said the old gentleman rabbit, "and we'll go back to my house, for I want to start my garden right away." So they stopped to get the old Red Rooster to scratch up the earth for them so they could plant the seeds.
Well, he was home all right, sitting on his front doorstep smoking a corn cob pipe and crowing every once in a while just to make the neighborhood roosters jealous, for he could crow louder than any turkey or chicken town. And the next time you shall hear what happened after that.

Today's Aid to Beauty
Hair is by far the most conspicuous thing about us and is probably the most easily damaged by bad or careless treatment. If we are very careful in hair washing, we will have virtually no hair troubles. An especially good hair wash for this weather, one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair; that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt; can easily be used at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthox (which you can get at any druggist's) in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid—enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. This chemical dissolves all impurities and creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, or, also, a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After canthox shampoo, arranging the hair is a pleasure.

TROUBLE IS, your system is clogged with a lot of impurities that your over-worked digestive and eliminative organs can't get rid of. Pills, oil, salts, calomel and ordinary laxatives, cathartics and purges only force the bowels and prod the liver.

TIMMONS EXPLAINS
PAINTINGS ON EXHIBIT

The first night exhibit of pictures by Edward J. Timmons opened auspiciously last evening at Library Hall. A large crowd was in attendance. An interesting talk was given by the talented artist, along lines connected with his work. He spoke of the need of a portrait painter getting in touch with his subject, and entering into his personality. He considered that this work of portraiture was of the most strenuous nature and took more of the vitality of the artist, than any other kind of art. He gave a talk on the different kinds of pictures in the exhibit, and showed how some of them had been painted by him, as relaxation from the more intense work of portraiture. He noted the fact that the picture of the aviator, that of a Chicago boy, Leonard Gibson, who was used as a model, when home on a furlough after being seriously wounded. Later he returned to France and was in the last big drive.

The picture "The Timmons," is of the artist's wife, and is a delightful study of the feminine type. The large picture "Manager Kelley," who is a Catholic priest, is the United States greets the visitor, when entering the room, and is noticeable for its dominating individuality.

Mr. Timmons emphasized the thought that America needed more of the religious element in its art, and that every mother with a child, was a madonna, if rightly portrayed.

The landscapes and seascapes are marked by a refinement and delicacy of feeling, and are done in both the soft misty tones, and in some of them is a boldness and dash that captivate the casual observer. It is an interesting item to be noted, that Mr. Timmons has secured a commission for a portrait while here. The exhibit will be open, today and tomorrow, both afternoon and evening.

THIN PEOPLE

SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitter-Phosphate to Build Up Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and repulsing ugly lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to a deficiency of phosphorus in the blood. By taking this medicine directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphorus, food is made more effective and quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance of the individual.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health, nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompanies excessive thinness, soon disappears and the body becomes bright and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Although Bitter-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it is also a powerful and remarkable flesh-growing preparation, used by anyone who desires to put on flesh.

Real force is the material from which leaders in all walks of life are made. It is well worth getting and holding.

The health and nerve of the athlete is what Nature intended every man and woman to have.

The blood of an athlete is pure and red, a strong heart pumps and drives it through his body. He wonders that every inch of his system is filled with energy and health. His nerves like iron, spirits high, hard tasks a pleasure and life is a song of joy.

A leading Doctor says, "Everyone should feel this way. That if you are not red blooded, are nervous, all run down and on your last legs, for you to build up your blood and nerves with exercise, fresh air, nourishing food and Nature's grant prescription, Phosphatized Iron, is the best and most reliable way to get from a real blood and nerve builder."

It also says, "Phosphatized Iron feeds the blood cells with iron and nerve force, and that being successful all over the country, that it is one of the few remedies that better class doctors can now depend on to produce results."

Wilson's Success Increased
American Prestige Abroad

By VICTOR McNAUGHT.

Paris, Feb. 18.—(Special Correspondence)—Without a doubt, the most interesting development since the close of the war has been the amazing increase in the power and popularity of President Wilson, and the accompanying growth in the moral prestige of the American nation abroad.

When the George Washington left Hoboken early in December, the air was dark with foreboding. The newspaper press of the east was almost unanimously opposed to the president's venture.

The picture "The Timmons," is of the artist's wife, and is a delightful study of the feminine type. The large picture "Manager Kelley," who is a Catholic priest, is the United States greets the visitor, when entering the room, and is noticeable for its dominating individuality.

Great Sacrifice of France for America

France has put 6 million of her 35 million population into the trenches and has poured out her life's blood for America and democracy. In addition we owe her a large debt of gratitude for a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments which her peasants discovered and successfully used. The ingredients are now imported and sold by Geo. H. Mayr, leading Chicago chemist, under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. Marvellous results are said to have been achieved by it. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. P. Baker & druggists everywhere.

The First Primitive Measures. Doubtless measures of all kinds were originally taken from the human body. An inch is roughly the length of the top joint of the thumb. A span is a quarter of a pace, and a pace is half one's height. The span and the pace were probably the foundation of all measurement, and we will speak quite commonly of so many paces distant.

DETROIT TEAM WILL PLAY DOUBLE HEADER AGAINST CARDINALS

Janesville basketball fans will have an opportunity of viewing the Detroit team in action in this city on two occasions this week. The Detroit aggregation will arrive in the city tomorrow morning and will play the Lakota Cardinals at the Armory on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Early yesterday morning the Cardinal manager received a telegram stating that the game with Janesville would have to be called off owing to the fact that the Beloit Fairies had cancelled two games.

Then followed a series of telegrams to Detroit and this morning word was received that the team would come to Janesville for two games.

The team from Detroit, which is undoubtedly one of the greatest in the country, is being brought to this city at a heavy expense and the fans of Janesville are going to have a chance to witness a team that has lost only one game in eight years.

The same men who have been playing together for the past eight years comprise the Detroit team. They have played 13 games this season and have won all of them by a safe margin. They have a victory by four points over the Elm Park Indians and the team the Whiting Owls had a hard time beating in an overtime game.

Captain Hemming of the local squad is anxious to get the best team possible for the game and is of the opinion that the team which beat the Sundstrand five last week is as good as can be found. It was planned to have Hemming, the Camp Grant center here for the game but word has been received that he has been confined to Camp Grant for two months.

Captain Hemming has built up a team that ranks with the best in the middle west and both games will be hard fought battles and it will be a great surprise in the Lakotas if the Detroit team slip over a win.

Cassidy and Peterson will do the guarding for the local team and both of the men are well versed in the art of keeping the opposing team from scoring and when Dermody, the Detroit captain lines up against Cassidy he will find himself covered by a man who will follow him all during the game.

Earl Phillips of Beloit will be at center and he can always be counted on to be on the ball every minute and Earl generally manages to slip through a few fingers during the game.

Captain Hemming will start at forward with Harris of Madison as his running mate. Harris the newly acquired forward is one of the best basketball players on the local team and when playing in form he is always good for at least five ringers.

The line up of the teams follows:

Cardinals: Hemming (Capt.) at center, Phillips at forward, Peterson at guard, Cassidy at point.

Ed. Smokiewicz at forward, Harris at center, Earl Phillips at guard, Cassidy at point.

Freight Depot Team: Krescent at center, Olson at forward, Hetter at guard, Boss at point.

R. Shumaker at center, Nitz at forward, Briggs at guard, Graft at point.

"LANK HANK" GOWDY WILL BE FANS' IDOL

Hank Gowdy.

It's a safe bet that "Lank Hank" Gowdy of Columbus, O., will be the big idol of baseball fans this season. Gowdy, who rose to the pinnacle of baseball fame by his work in the 1914 world series, was the first big leaguer to volunteer his services in the war. The fact that he has been over the top many times, was promoted and commended for bravery and tops it all with a winning personality will make fandom strong for him.

GAZETTE NEWS MEN WREAK VENGEANCE

For several weeks, certain employees of the mechanical department of the Gazette office have shown an inclination to boast of their prowess as bowlers. Their rude manner in proclaiming their superiority grated upon the finer sensibilities of the editorial department, and goaded to desperation and without any previous preparation, the news men accepted a challenge to roll a match game at the East Side alleys.

Knowing that their cause was just and that the only way to bring about a more restful atmosphere at the plant, the editorial force took the printers on Monday night. With unsparing determination, aided by excellent control of the balls as well as their tempers, the heroes won the contest by two pins. This morning the mechanical department is quiet except for the rumbling of machines.

Although the editorial bowlers rolled perfect balls in almost every frame, the pins were recalcitrant and did not respond to the onslaughts of the pin-poppers. Thus, the score of 2,057 to 2,055 is explained.

One of the features of the evening was the bowling of Ash, who is said to have been in the family. Ash, a last minute entrant, rolled wonderful games although the scores do not indicate it.

Capt. Wanthel was easily the star for his team. Wallowing the woodenware for a count of 197 in the second game, he was given the purple dachy offer for high score. Fire, another star for the losing team, was plainly off color. After hitting 170 in the first game he dropped to 129 in the last, blowing a couple of spurs which cost the printers the victory. Netzel surprised his teammates by splitting the pins for a count of 141. Quade and Dabson played erratic games.

For the news staff, Chappie performed the most consistently graceful field worked his hook ball for a healthy average, while Ash boosted the score with high counts in the last two games. Ross was out of luck, every time the pins would not fall. Kavelage worked well when he got started.

The scores:

Printers: Mantel 159 107 184, Nitzel 138 138 141, Quade 143 109 121, Dabson 108 114 123, Fire 170 141 120.

Totals: 713 804 648-2055

Lost the game.

News Hashers: Ross 119 117 129, Ash 110 153 152, Kavelage 117 134 188, Chappie 154 151 140, Cranfield 133 167 147.

NOTED HANDLESS BILLIARD EXPERT OFFERS TO AID MAIMED SOLDIERS IN HOSPITALS

George Sutton, Chicago, veteran "handless" billiard champion, is to volunteer his services to the government as an instructor in hospitals of disabled soldiers. Sutton, referred to as the "miracle man" of the billiard world, is preparing his personal affairs to undertake the work.

Optimistic Thought. A man's good name is his best monument.

Optimistic Thought. Often what is given is small, yet the result from it is great.

MOTHER-HOOD-WINKED.
Please, Doctor, tell me exactly what you think of the baby's case. The young mother was mainly worried by the fact that her baby was not thriving.
"I don't believe you want to hear just what I think," replied the doctor who is old enough to qualify as a veteran but is not "case hardened."
"But I'll tell you anyway. It may help you more than it will hurt you. The fact is, my dear, that you are not a very good mother. There, there. I don't mean to suggest that you do not love your baby. Perhaps you love him too much.
"But you have gone into the mothering business without any training for it. Let me see, before you married you were an expert stenographer, weren't you? Of course you loved your work or you wouldn't have done it. But you did not acquire experience just by loving work. Instead you studied ceaselessly and then you practiced and took sharp criticism until you acquired judgment and skill.
"How many good books have you read on babies? How many lectures have you heard? How many of the excellent pamphlets offered through the University of the Federal Children's Bureau, the Library Commission, etc., have you sent for? None! Am I correct?
"Study your baby as you would a valuable young animal or a rare plant. Get help from every dependable source. And, by the way, let me say that while your mother is an admirable woman in every respect, she should not take her opinion on baby-rearing as final. Bless her heart, we have all learned a lot about babies since you were born."

Special Flooring From Sawdust.
In combination with cement, sawdust of various kinds and colors is used in the construction of special flooring, such as that used in hospitals. Such flooring, made with the material in a plastic state can be laid out in a single piece, without cracks or joints, and so made germ-proof. It is, furthermore, "silent" and easier to tread than tile.

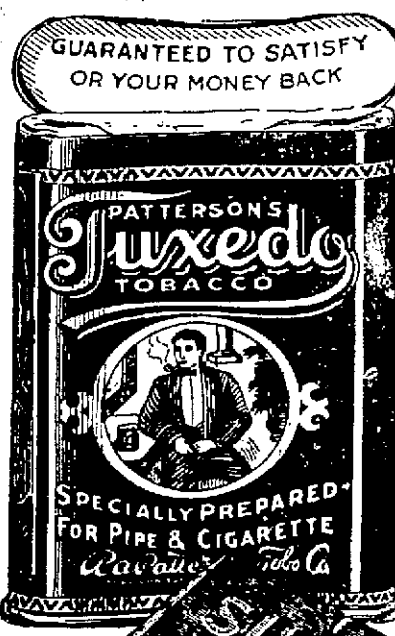

Youngsters Generally Do.
Hartley was visiting his aunt for a few days. A friend asked him if he went to school. He admitted that he had not been yet, but volunteered to tell her various things which mamma had taught him. Then with a sudden, bright expression he added: "And I know some things I've never been taught!"

All Smoking Tobaccos are Flavored

"Your Nose Knows"

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco, "... on the Continent and in America certain 'sauces' are employed ... the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves." Your smoke-enjoyment depends as much upon the Quality and kind of flavoring used as upon the Quality and aging of the tobacco. Tuxedo tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate! That flavoring, added to the finest of carefully aged and blended burley tobacco, produces Tuxedo—the perfect tobacco—"Your Nose Knows."

Try This Test: Rub a little Tuxedo briskly in the palm of your hand to bring out its full aroma. Then smell it deep—its delicious, pure fragrance will convince you. Try this test with any other tobacco and we will let Tuxedo stand or fall on your judgment—"Your Nose Knows."

Chicago Grain Review
 Chicago, Feb. 18.—Bears had an advantage in the corn market today. It is reported that the customs of fixing of an average minimum price for packers drove the market down. The packers' market was left to take care of itself. Selling covered 25 was a conservative. Shorts covered on the downswing. Opening prices which ranged from 54 to 1 1/2 cents lower than before. Subsequently, reports of further government orders for packing house products operated as only in part an offset.

Reaction of hedges against export sales by packers had some bullish influence later but not of a lasting sort. Closing prices: Grain Table

Cows Will Keep Down Expenses If Given Right Kind Of Care, West Tells Farmers

(By A. B. West.)

These are the days when farmers as well as other property-owners are thinking about their taxes, and that if they did not have to pay such big sums to the government they might get ahead a bit. Paying taxes seems like throwing money away so far as any direct benefit to the individual is concerned, and a heavy tax roll is a burden to be avoided.

The observation of the writer, however, shows him that many Rock county farmers are taxing themselves more heavily than ever the government thought of doing, and in ways that benefit no one. One of these ways may be observed on a drive through the country in almost any direction.

The care and upkeep of machinery is a considerable expense on any modern farm and yet any drive about the country will reveal dozens of expensive machinery left out in the open, exposed to the weather—hay loaders, mangle spreaders, horse rakes and even mowers and binders. Often these are left in the field where they were last used. Such treatment must benefit the implement in any way that benefits no one. One of these ways may be observed on a drive through the country in almost any direction.

Another way in which farmers that have come under the writer's observation tax themselves is by keeping unprofitable cows. A little experience which I heard related the other day is to the point here. A wide-awake young farmer who keeps track of the cost of the feed and the production of his individual cows found that one of them was not making good. She fell short 27 cents a day of paying for her feed. Her owner offered her for sale and the farmer who bought her and who did not keep track of her cost for board and her production thought he had a very good cow.

It is to be regretted that there are not more cow testing associations in the county, but it is quite possible for farmers who are careful and who keep records, to determine whether cows are paying for their keep or whether they are a tax on the pocket-book.

Another source of loss to the farmer comes from lack of profitable feeding.

Tact.

Feeding has two objects. First, the maintenance of the body; second, for production. To have the first without the second one has only his labor for his reward, and it is a reward that most farmers neither need, nor appreciate, but in these days of high prices of feedstuffs it is what many of them are getting. They say they cannot afford to buy feed at the present prices. So they content themselves with merely the maintenance ration. Their wisdom in this course may be fairly compared to that of a manufacturer who finds the price of raw materials so high that he thinks he cannot afford to buy them. He keeps his machinery running and pays the cost of the power and the upkeep of the machines, but produces nothing.

Another source of loss is in not giving the stock good care. The way in which stock is cared for puts money in the pocket or takes it out. Animals must maintain a certain amount of body heat. To that end food must be selected properly or if it is lacking in the carbohydrates the animals will be obliged to consume more in order to keep up the body heat. Again, if they are housed in cold quarters or turned out where they are exposed to the wind or obliged to drink icy water they must consume more food to keep up the right temperature.

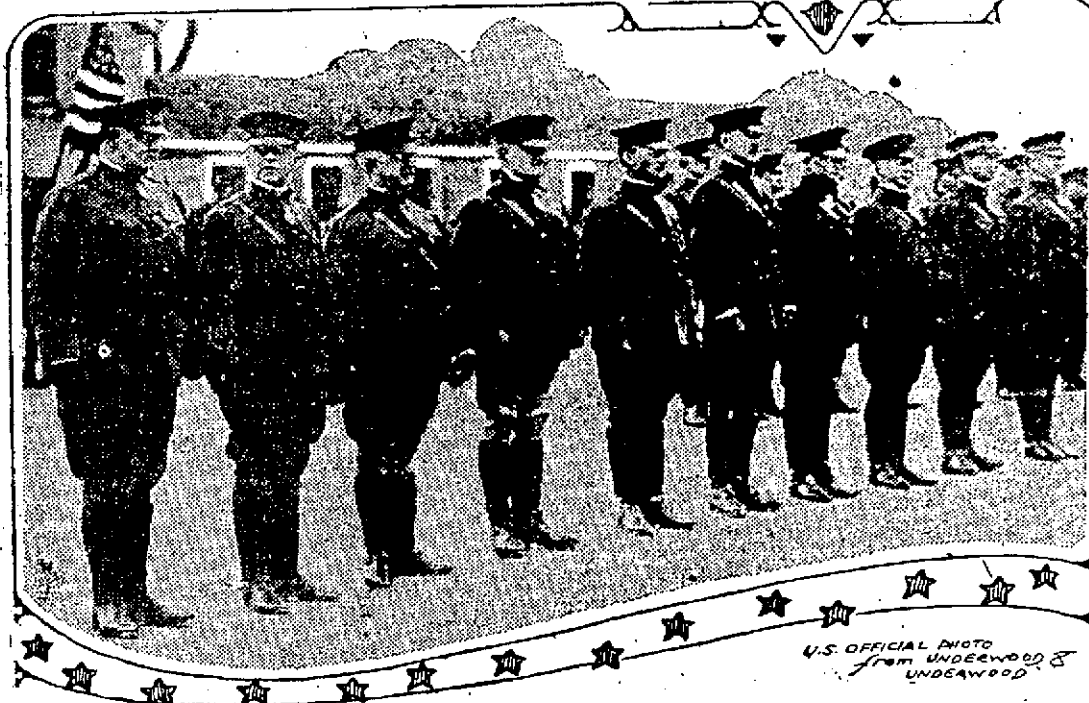

Two items that are going the rounds of the local papers show two methods of getting profit from cows. Some farmers in an adjoining county, it is said, increase their supply of milk by adding water to it. They may have been tender-hearted and wanted to save their cows the trouble of drinking a lot of cold water. But their plan did not work long, for the law got after them with dire consequences.

It was a Rock county farmer near Janesville who tried a water and sater plan. He installed a water system in his barn that kept water at a comfortable temperature before his cows so they could drink any time they felt like it. He had 23 cows and they applied the water so judiciously that the authorities found no fault. More than that, the increase in the milk paid for the installing of the system in the first month of its use.

Boiler Corrosion.

As a preventive of boiler corrosion potassium bichromate is quite effective, provided the feed water is free from salt. If, however, a small quantity of the latter be present, free hydrochloric acid is generated.

A Safe 7 Per Cent for Wisconsin Money

The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company, Wisconsin's largest, strongest public utility company, offers Wisconsin investors its 5-year, 7%, bond-secured Gold Notes at par, in $50, $100, $500 and $1,000 sizes.

Sale of the Notes—an issue of $3,600,000—was approved by the Wisconsin Railroad Commission, to finance the growth of Milwaukee's electric power, light, heat and transportation system.

The value of the State-appraised property and business back of the Notes exceeds $50,000,000, which is $16,000,000 more than total debt secured and unsecured, including this issue.

A reasonable yearly net income on the State-appraised value of the system is assured by State regulation of its rates, fares, service, financing and accounting.

More than 1,000 Wisconsin investors took the first half of the issue in six days. This is the only high grade short term Wisconsin Note issue now selling at a price to pay investors as much as 7 per cent.

Note buyers collect interest twice a year—May 1 and November 1—by clipping interest coupons and taking them to the nearest bank. The Notes mature November 1, 1923.

The $50 Note earns $17.40 interest in five years; the $100 Note, $35; the $500 Note, $175; the $1,000 Note, $350. Why let your money earn less?
